STATE CONFERENCE OF AAUP
TO HOLD COLLECTIVE BARGAINING
WORKSHOP IN HELENA MARCH 2-3

MISSOULA--

The Montana State Conference of the American Association of University Professors will hold a workshop on collective bargaining March 2-3 in Helena for AAUP members from colleges and universities in the state, Dr. John E. Van de Wetering, AAUP Montana State Conference president, has announced.

Van de Wetering, who is chairman of the University of Montana history department, said the conference will be financed, in part, by a grant from the AAUP national office.

The AAUP is a professional organization of faculty members at institutions of higher learning throughout the nation.

"Founded in 1914 by such distinguished leaders as John Dewey, the association has become the largest of its kind," Van de Wetering said. "It is, perhaps, best known for its efforts to establish professional standards for college and university teachers."
